THE UNITED STATES VIRGIN ISLANDS OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR GOVERNMENT HOUSE

A MESSAGE FROM GOVERNOR ALBERT BRYAN JR.

I extend my heartfelt congratulations to the Election System of the Virgin Islands (ESVI) on its 60th Anniversary of preserving the community's confidence in the democratic process of electing governing officials and protecting one of the most fundamental rights of our democracy – the right to vote.

The ESVI marks six remarkable decades of successfully holding primary, general and run-off elections, registering generations of Virgin Islanders to vote, enforcing election laws and regulating disclosure and limitations intended to govern campaign practices. Indeed, the VI election system is "Thriving with Integrity," and we are grateful to the ESVI team, past and present, for its commitment to serving the people of this Territory.

Over the years, the ESVI has also kept pace with emerging technology and best practices for securing its voting system through an election cycle. It moved seamlessly from paper to electronic ballots and tallying votes manually to automation. In 2022, we watched as the ESVI shifted from polling places to voting centers in an effort to make voting as accessible as possible for all residents.

Just as the ESVI has painstakingly implemented measures to ensure democratic elections, each of us has a responsibility to use our vote to shape our government. It is crucial that Virgin Islanders register to vote to make their voices heard and to help create a government reflective of and responsive to the needs of the Territory.

Best wishes to the ESVI for all of its planned events to celebrate the notable achievements and history of the organization.

May God bless you all. May God bless these beloved United States Virgin Islands.

Sincerely,

I count it a distinct pleasure to extend my heartfelt congratulations to Supervisor Caroline Adams-Fawkes and the Election System of the Virgin Islands on this occasion of their Diamond Jubilee Anniversary.

Elections are the most impactful way that we participate in our society. Since its inception on February 20, 1963, the Election System of the Virgin Islands has served as the foundation and guardian of our democracy. The many achievements of the Election System of the Virgin Islands reflect the hard work of a team that stands on the shoulders of men and women who had a shared vision of what the Election System could and should be. We appreciate and applaud the outstanding leadership of Supervisor Caroline Adams-Fawkes and all those who have served this organization with their vision, initiative and hard work to ensure the Election System's continued success. Message from the Board of Elections

Dear fellow Board members and honored guests,

I am writing to you today to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the United States Virgin Islands Board of Elections, and to reflect on my decades of service as a member of this esteemed institution.

As we look back on the last 60 years, it is with great pride that I recall the many milestones we have achieved. From our establishment under Title 18, Chapter 3, Section 41 of the Virgin Islands Code, to our recent election in November 2022, for six of the fourteen seats on the board, it is clear that we have come a long way in our mission to ensure free and fair elections in the Virgin Islands.

As a Board member for the past 20 years, I have had the privilege of working alongside some of the most dedicated and hardworking individuals I have ever known. Together, we have overseen countless elections, helped to shape the direction of our territory, and stood firm in the face of challenges and adversity.

As we look to the future, I am confident that the Board of Elections will continue to play a vital role in ensuring the integrity of the electoral process and promoting civic engagement in our communities. I am honored to have been a part of this organization for 2 decades, and I look forward to the next chapter in its proud history.

This year, the Elections System of the Virgin Islands (ESVI) observes our Sixtieth Anniversary --Diamond Jubilee. Established on February 20, 1963, ESVI is the sole entity responsible for ensuring one of our most precious rights as a democratic society - the right to vote.

Today, we stand on the shoulders of all who served in the Elections System of the Virgin Islands since its authorization by Act No. 936 of the Legislature of the Virgin Islands. We cannot say "elections" without remembering our stalwart leader, Ms. Henrita Todman, the first Supervisor of Elections. She had the foresight, vision, spirit, and tenacity to lead this organization at a time when most organizations were not led by women. We continue to sing her praises and thank her daily.

We embrace this Diamond Jubilee as a meaningful way to show the hardworking staff, board members, elections officials, and those who offered themselves as candidates over the last six decades that we value their contributions. Their abilities and efforts have ensured the continuing success of this organization. Together, we celebrate and take pride in each of their accomplishments and commitment to excellence.

We also honor the electorate who have entrusted us throughout these 60 years with their precious votes. A week of activities territory-wide including an elections retrospective exhibit, an anniversary ceremony, a forum, an essay contest, lunch on the lawn, a progress march, and the Diamond Jubilee Gala demonstrate our continuing quest to remind all segments of our community that civic engagement is important. We will continue to celebrate with other activities throughout 2023, and welcome public participation.

Celebrating an organization's anniversary is an important milestone in the professional journey of an employee. As the current Supervisor, I express sincere gratitude for the diligent efforts of so many over the years. Recognizing that dedicated employees are the foundation of any successful organization, I offer a special thank you to the ESVI team for your daily contributions to the success of our organization.

Thriving with Integrity, Elections System Celebrates Sixty – Cheers to All of Us, Past and Present!

RE: 60th Anniversary

Dear Ms. Fawkes,

I write to express our congratulations on the celebration of your 60th Anniversary of the Election Department. We at the Election Center, the National Association of Election Officials, have maintained a wonderful relationship with all members from the Virgin Islands while working to provide them with valuable training and networking opportunities over our history of partnership with your offices.

There was a time when the administration of elections and voter registration was a straight forward, relatively simple matter of occasionally organizing election workers, maintaining registration lists, and holding periodic elections. That time is no longer. Civil rights concerns (racial, ethnic, disabilities, language minorities) as well as a variety of other considerations ranging from increasing participation to the demands of modern technology have forever and radically altered the nature of the elections/registration process. As a result, thoughtful election and registration officials have come to believe that this profession is one that requires expert, trained administrators who understand the subtleties of the myriad of factors now making the administration of the elections process a specialty for which specific knowledge and abilities are essential.

Your offices have consistently demonstrated a commitment to providing valuable training opportunities to your staff. We commend your leadership in this area and thank you for your partnership with the Election Center over the years to provide training and networking opportunities for your staff. Please accept our most sincere congratulations on your 60th anniversary as we look forward to the continuation of our partnership with your offices.

Sincerely,

homas Hicks was nominated by President Barack H. Obama and confirmed by unanimous consent of the United States Senate on December 16, 2014, to serve on the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC).

Commissioner Hicks has focused his efforts on voter access. Under his leadership, the EAC developed a pocket-sized voter card that serves as a guide on voting rights for voters with disabilities. In addition, Mr. Hicks has addressed the difficulties overseas voters have when requesting and returning their ballots, such as dealing with foreign IP addresses and issues with timely ballot delivery.

Prior to his appointment with the EAC, Commissioner Hicks served as a senior elections counsel and minority elections counsel on the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on House Administration, a position he held from 2003 to 2014. In this role, Mr. Hicks was responsible for issues relating to campaign finance, election reform, contested elections and oversight of both the U.S. Election Assistance Commission and the Federal Election Commission. His primary responsibility was providing guidance to the committee members and caucus on election issues.

Prior to joining the U.S. House of Representatives, Mr. Hicks served as a senior lobbyist and policy analyst from 2001 to 2003 for Common Cause, a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that empowers citizens to make their voices heard in the political process and to hold their elected leaders accountable to the public interest. Mr. Hicks also served in the Clinton administration from 1993 to 2001 as a special assistant and legislative assistant in the Office of Congressional Relations for the Office of Personnel Management.

Mr. Hicks received his J.D. from the Catholic University of America, Columbus School of Law and his B.A. in Government from Clark University (Worcester, MA). He studied at the University of London (London, England) and law at the University of Adelaide (Adelaide, Australia).

Of...

History of ELECTIONS

The earliest participatory visualizations were probably voting systems. Voting in Greece was introduced in the 5th century BC. Adult male citizens were invited to express their opinion by dropping a pebble in an urn: a white pebble meant "yes" and a black pebble meant "no". Sometimes two urns were used. The left image is a detail of a Greek wine cup from the 5th century BC and is one of the earliest known depictions of the act of voting. The middle image is a modern reconstruction from a TV documentary.

Secret voting was also in use, but it is unclear how (perhaps using "a contraption to obscure the urn into which a voter was placing his hand"). By the mid-4th century BC, a more elaborate method of secret voting was introduced based on bronze ballots whose difference could only be felt by touch.

In the 19th century, freemasons and fraternities started to use ballot boxes to decide who should be included in the group or who should be expelled (see right image). The boxes had a small opening where each member would covertly insert a white marble to mean "yes", or a black marble (or black cube) to mean "no". After everyone voted, the box was opened so that all members could immediately see the results. Sometimes a single black marble or cube was sufficient to reject a proposition or an applicant, yielding the expression "blackballing". Annelisa Stephen 2012

Although elections were used in ancient Athens, in Rome, and in the selection of popes and Holy Roman emperors, the origins of elections in the contemporary world lie in the gradual emergence of representative government in Europe and North America beginning in the 17th century. At that time, the holistic notion of representation characteristic of the Middle Ages was transformed into a more individualistic conception, one that made the individual the critical unit to be counted. Once governments were believed to derive their powers from the consent of the governed and expected to seek that consent regularly, it remained to decide precisely who was to be included among the governed whose consent was necessary. Advocates of full democracy favoured the establishment of universal adult suffrage. Across western Europe and North cast ballots. For example, in Switzerland and the United States, fewer than half the electorate vote in most elections. Although legal or self-imposed exclusion can dramatically affect public policy and even undermine the legitimacy of a government, it does not preclude decision making by election, provided that voters are given genuine alternatives among which to choose.

During the 18th century, access to the political arena depended largely on membership in an aristocracy, and participation in elections was regulated mainly by local customs and arrangements. Although both the American and French revolutions declared every citizen formally equal to every other, the vote remained an instrument of political power possessed by very few.

Even with the implementation of universal suffrage, the ideal of "one person, one vote" was not achieved in all countries. Systems of plural voting were maintained in some countries, giving certain social groups an electoral advantage. For example, in the United Kingdom, university graduates and owners of businesses in constituencies other than America, adult male suffrage was ensured almost everywhere by 1920, though woman suffrage was not established until somewhat later (e.g., 1928 in Britain, 1944 in France, 1949 in Belgium, and 1971 in Switzerland).

Although common to it is equate representative government and elections with democracy, and although competitive elections under universal suffrage are one of democracy's defining characteristics, universal suffrage is not a necessary condition of competitive electoral politics. An electorate may be limited by formal legal requirements—as was the case before universal adult suffrage-or it may be limited by the failure of citizens to exercise their right to vote. In many countries with free elections, large numbers of citizens do not those in which they lived could cast more than one ballot until 1948. Before World War I, both Austria and Prussia had three classes of weighted votes that effectively kept electoral power in the hands of the upper social strata. Until the passage of the Voting Rights Act in 1965 in the United States, legal barriers and intimidation effectively barred most African Americans—especially those in the South from being able to cast ballots in elections.

Functions of Elections

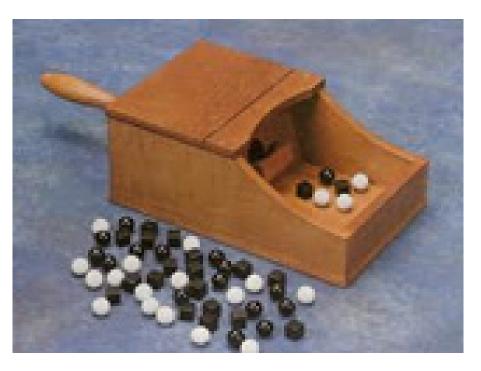

Elections make a fundamental contribution to democratic governance. Because direct democracy—a form of government in which political decisions are made directly by the entire body of qualified citizens—is impractical in most modern societies, democratic government must be conducted through representatives. Elections enable voters to select leaders and to hold them accountable for their performance in office. Accountability can be undermined when elected leaders do not care whether they are reelected or when, for historical or other reasons, one party or coalition is so dominant that there is effectively no for voters among choice alternative candidates, parties, or policies. Nevertheless, the possibility of controlling leaders by requiring them to submit to regular and periodic elections helps to solve the problem of succession in leadership and thus contributes to the continuation of democracy. Moreover, where the electoral process is competitive and forces candidates or parties to expose their records and future intentions to popular scrutiny, elections serve as forums for the discussion of public issues and facilitate the expression of public opinion. Elections thus provide political education for citizens and ensure the responsiveness of democratic governments to the will of the people. They also serve to legitimize the acts of those who wield power, a function that is performed to some extent even by elections that are noncompetitive.

Elections also reinforce the stability and legitimacy of the political community. Like national holidays commemorating common experiences, elections link citizens to each other and thereby confirm the viability of the polity. As a result, elections help to facilitate social and political integration.

Finally, elections serve a self-actualizing purpose by confirming the worth and dignity of individual citizens as human beings. Whatever other needs voters may have, participation in an election serves to reinforce their self-esteem and selfrespect. Voting gives people an opportunity to have their say and, through expressing partisanship, to satisfy their need to feel a sense of belonging. Even nonvoting satisfies the need of some people to express their alienation from the political community. For precisely these reasons, the long battle for the right to vote and the demand for equality in electoral participation can be viewed as the manifestation of a profound human craving for personal fulfillment.

The proudest now is but my peer, The highest not more high; To-day, of all the weary year, A king of men am I. To-day alike are great and small, The nameless and the known My palace is the people's hall, The ballot-box my throne!

Who serves to-day upon the list Beside the served shall stand; Alike the brown and wrinkled fist, The gloved and dainty hand! The rich is level with the poor, The weak is strong to-day; And sleekest broadcloth counts no more Than homespun frock of gray.

To-day let pomp and vain pretence My stubborn right abide; I set a plain man's common sense Against the pedant's pride. To-day shall simple manhood try The strength of gold and land The wide world has not wealth to buy The power in my right hand!

While there's a grief to seek redress, Or balance to adjust, Where weighs our living manhood less Than Mammon's vilest dust, --While there's a right to need my vote A wrong to sweep away, Up! clouted knee and ragged coat! A man's a man to-day!
